A WORD FROM THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

JEFF EBERT

Hello Cheviot Enthusiast,

Wow, what a frustrating year 2020 was in so many ways. However, it is time to put 2020 behind us as the view is always bigger out the front window than through the rearview mirror. As we look forward to 2021 there are a lot of positives in the sheep world. Lamb prices are very strong currently, cull ewe prices are at record highs and planning for sales and shows are moving full speed ahead in most parts of the United States.

Although registration numbers were down in 2020, we expect a recovery as many sheep were not registered due to lack of shows and sales. So, if you have sheep that you need to get registered from 2020 do not hesitate to send those registration applications in to the registry office. As we look to sale and show season, the ACSS online sale will be April 20th, consider entering a ewe or two in that sale. Online sales have become very popular and it is a chance to spread your genetics to different parts of the US or add some new genetics to your flock from the various Cheviot online sales.

Springfield, Illinois will be the site of two of the biggest Cheviots events of the summer. The National Cheviot sale and annual meeting will be held there June 11- 12. This is always a fun well attended event where you can meet Cheviot breeders from all over the USA. The All-American Junior Show will also be held in Springfield, Illinois on July 1-4. This is always one of the largest shows for the Cheviot juniors throughout the year. Make plans to attend one or both of these events in Springfield this summer.

In closing, let's work together to grow the Cheviot breed and help new breeders of all ages get started with their Cheviots. It is important to help those newbies feel welcomed into our breed and they appreciate any assistance that you can provide them.

A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT

DAN SPILDE

Happy spring time to all as we work our way into what we hope is a normal sheep season. After a very challenging and frustrating year, I'm sure I speak for all of us when I say it's time for a spring, summer and fall that is filled with sheep sales, sheep shows, and other sheep events. It does appear most events are set to go for this year, but as we all have become aware, we will wait and see if life throws us another curveball. I just returned from the Ohio dorset sale where the enthusiasm was very high and the sale average was also impressive and at record levels. Camaraderie was rebuilt and friendships were rekindled throughout the event. Typically the Ohio dorset sale sets the tone for the rest of the sale season across all breeds. I am confident that it will again this year not only in sale average and quality, but also in laughter and enthusiasm.

Here in the Cheviot breed, we have a lot to look forward to! Our national show and sale is a week earlier than normal this year on June 11-12. Mark your calendar's for what should be a tremendous event! Much like the dorset sale, there is likely to be incredible quality animals at our national sale after a year of building up and preparing for it. Please look through sheep calendars and check websites for all the other sale opportunities as we gear up for what could be one of the greatest summer and fall show seasons we have seen in years. Everyone I talk to in the sheep business, is excited to showcase their animals and get back together with old sheep friends at these events. In the meantime, make sure you get all of your lambs registered and communicate with your potential buyers as we close in on what I assume will be a great year in the sheep business! I hope everyone had a great lambing season and is ready to shut down the zoom calls and replace them with some good in-person conversations. So let's get all those kids off the couch and let's all get excited about showcasing our Cheviots and making the purchases that will increase our quality and quantity moving forward.

In closing, I wish everyone the best of luck this year, whether that is aspiring to win at the shows or just having a healthy and beautiful group to admire on your pasture. I am looking forward to seeing all of you at the events this year. Also, please introduce yourself to me if we haven't met in person. I always enjoy meeting new people and I am very receptive to hearing ideas that may help our breed moving forward.

Best regards,

Dan Spilde

UPDATED INFORMATION WANTED

The American Cheviot Sheep Society emails a periodic newsletter about events and Cheviot happenings. If you would like to be included on this email list please notify the association office at ebertsheepfarm@gmail.com. This will allow the information to get to you, the members, much quicker. Also, if you have corrections to your address or phone number or want to add your cell phone to your breeder listing, please notify the office of that as well. The mailing list is an ever changing list so please do all you can to keep the Association office of any changes in your contact information.

The association is always looking for good farm scene pictures of Cheviots, so if you get a chance take some pictures and send them by email or disk to the association office. Your help in these matters is much appreciated.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The modern Cheviot breed has been produced by selection rather than by crossing. It is a pure breed, one of a very few in this country. Because of this purity, when the Cheviot ram is mated with crossbred ewes of other breeds, he stamps an unmistakable Cheviotness on his offspring, importing to them a large measure of the superiority of which Cheviots are known.

Distinctive Appearance

The modern American Cheviot is primarily a mutton sheep. As sheep weights go, it is definitely one of the smaller breeds but one of the most distinctive in appearance. Much of its distinctive appearance is due to the high carriage of the head and the quick, coordinated stride. The head is carried high, and the ears are carried together, erect and forward. There is no wool on the head or face in front of the ears, nor is there wool below the knees and the hocks. The head, legs, and ears are covered with very fine white hair. Their bare heads, attractive white color and absence of horns give them a very aristocratic bearing. Nostrils and hooves should be black in color. Rams in good condition mature at 160 to 200 lbs., ewes from 130 to 170 lbs.

Extreme Hardiness

The breed is also recommended for its extreme hardiness. This is one of the breed's strongest characteristics. For generations raised on the Cheviot Hills, rarely seeing the inside of a shed or barn, summer or winter, Cheviots have, from force of circumstances, developed into the hardiest of the medium-wool breeds. The newborn lambs are strong, vigorous and alert and are born with a will to live. Their unusual vitality and hardiness makes them easy to raise, and with reasonable care, losses are insignificant.

Production Plus

Cheviot ewes are a delight for the shepherd. They bear their lambs easily, have a high number of twins, and produce plenty of milk to support them. Production records, year after year, show that their twins grow as fast as single lambs. Both the lambs and their mothers are good foragers and thrifty efficient feeders. Their grazing pattern is unlike that of other sheep. Instead of grouping together in a frontal assault on a single area, they tend to spread out over an area and get all the available feed. As rustlers, they have few equals. If there is vegetation to be found—above or beneath the snows—browse, grass, heather, or weed—they will find it.

Desirable Carcasses

The modern Cheviot has a compact body with a straight smooth back with covers a rack of well-filled, meaty chops and a broad loin of superior quality. The leg is full, round and plump. One of the outstanding merits of these choice cuts, the Cheviot has a reputation as a meat producer. These plump, meaty cuts, their pink flesh delicately trimmed with just enough fat to make them juicy and tender, are the housewife's choice because with them she can serve her family a tasty meal with minimum waste. Because they are housewife's choice, Cheviots are the choice of the butcher, and therefore bring a better price at the market. The Cheviot is prized by the meat packers for the very practical reason that the packer gets more pounds of lamb which he buys "on the hoof."

Cheviot rams are excellent sires in crossbred market lamb production programs. Ewes built to deliver larger-headed lambs find the Cheviot-sired lambs, with their small heads, very easy to deliver, so that much less attention is required at lambing time. These lambs are so vigorous, strong, and hardy at birth that losses are kept at a minimum, and a higher percentage of the lambs are raised to marketing age. Successful producers of commercial lambs know their success depends upon their ability to produce the kind of lamb carcasses which the market demands, at the lowest labor and feed cost. Cheviot ram aid these commercial producers in producing the type of lambs desired by the market.

Fine Fleeces

Cheviots produce generous fleeces of white wool which is preferred by mills because its fineness, crimp, and length of staple give it superior spinning and combing qualities, and its low grease content causes less shrinkage in scouring. The fleece is usually grades 1/4 to 3/8 blood combing and is usually from four to five inches in length. Rams will normally shear 9 to 13 lbs., and the ewe will produce fleeces of 8 to 10 lbs.

All Things Considered

Though Cheviots may come in smaller packages, they contain for the sheepman a surprising combination of highly desirable qualities. They are noted for hardiness, longevity, productiveness, milking, and mothering ability and for their great activity. They are high in quality and hang a presentable carcass that has a minimum of outside fat for the amount of carcass lean produced. They utilize rough, low producing hill country very profitably with relatively little assistance from man and even less from the elements. Where there is a really tough clean-up job to be done to convert waste land into dollars, more and more sheepmen are discovering that "Cheviots can take it." In comparing Cheviots with other breeds, let the comparison be made on a basis of pounds of dressed lamb and clean wool produced per acre, and consider all of the costs of this production, including the year-round cost of feeding the ewe, and the time and attention required at lambing and shearing time.

I. GENERAL APPEARANCE 25 POINTS

A. APPEARANCE: Alert, active stylish and symmetrical, standing on moderate leg length. The overall body exhibits balance.

B. SIZE: The preferred Cheviot is proportional in height and length equal to or exceeding the height of the animal. The average Cheviot ram should weigh approximately 200 pounds at maturity. The average Cheviot ewe should weigh approximately 150 pounds at maturity.

II. BREED TYPE 25 POINTS

The beauty of the Cheviot head is one of the breed's distinguishing features. The Cheviot style, alertness and contrasting colors set the breed apart from others.

A. HEAD: Medium in length and broad, with ample width between the eyes. Straight with little arch between the eyes and nostrils; more strongly arched in rams.

1. EARS: Medium in length, sharply erect, of medium thickness, and placed on top of the head. The circumference of the ears should give a curved appearance, rather than flat and open. From a side view, the ears should be pointed slightly forward.

2. EYES: Large, round, clear and alert, with black pigmentation around the rim of the eye.

3. NOSE: Broad muzzled, with large nostrils forming a black "T" at the end of the nose.

4. MOUTH: Black lipped with a strong deep jaw.

B. HAIR COVERING: Head, ears, and legs well covered with fine, short, white hair. Black spots are acceptable on the ears and poll. Black spots on any other part of the body are objectionable. Brown hair on any part of the body is HIGHLY objectionable.

C. HOOVES: Black in color.

III. STRUCTURE 25 POINTS

Soundness is imperative in useful Cheviot sheep. Incorrectness decreases the animal's movement, growth, reproductive rate, longevity, usefulness and ultimate value. Additionally, structure and soundness are highly inheritable traits. Cheviots should stand on large circumference of bone with adequate size to the foot. Structural soundness relates to the skeleton. Incorrectness in one part of the skeleton usually is connected to incorrectness in other parts of the skeleton. For example, usually post-legged animals are also too straight in their shoulder angle.

AREAS OF STRUCTURAL CORRECTNESS

FOREQUARTERS: Shoulder blades should be set in uniformly and smoothly to the rest of the body.

BACK: The back of Cheviot sheep should be straight as possible from the top of the shoulder to the dock. A slightly elevated shoulder in comparison to the hip is acceptable. Additionally, slight slope of the hip from the hook to the pin bones is acceptable.

FRONT FEET: Front View: Both feet should point forward and be perpendicular to the body with straightness from the chest floor to the toe.

SIDE VIEW: Feet should be straight from the chest floor through the knee to the pastern. The angle of the pastern should be approximately 45 degrees. Less of an angle allows for weak pasterns and more of an angle allows for extreme straightness.

REAR FEET: Side View: The back of the rear leg should be perpendicular to the pin bones of the hip. Less angle allows for post-legged individuals. More angle causes sheep to be sickle-hocked.

REAR VIEW: Legs should be square and perpendicular to the corners of the body with equal distance between legs at the hock and the toe.

MOVEMENT: Animals should maintain the proper correctness to the skeleton both while standing and moving. Many times structural defects are not evident until the animal moves about. It is then important to assess structural correctness both while the Cheviot is standing and moving.

For the beginner and veteran breeder alike, an excellent article on feet and leg soundness in sheep is "Feet and Legs" (North Central Regional Extension Publication #301) by Drs. Harold Henneman and Margaret Benson of Michigan State University.

IV. BODY 25 POINTS

A. NECK: Moderately long, trim, and exhibiting extension, blending smoothly into shoulders, and contributing to an overall balanced appearance.

B. SHOULDERS: Smoothly laid in from neck to back. Tight at top of the shoulder, also smooth at the point of the shoulder.

C. CHEST, BRISKET, AND HEART GIRTH:

OF EXCELLENCE

Chest deep and moderately wide, but trim, with adequate capacity, and fitting smoothly into neck and shoulders. Brisket also trim. Heart girth full, broad and deep to promote longevity.

D. BACK (TOPLINE): Long and level, no weakness in front or behind the shoulder.

E. RIBS: Deep and well sprung with adequate cover. Essential for vigor and ease of fleshing.

F. LOIN: Long, wide, deep, and well covered.

G. HINDQUARTERS: Hip broader than shoulders. Rump wide, long and level out to the dock. Leg heavily muscled.

H. UNDERLINE: Level and as parallel to the topline as possible. Flanks deep and full.

I. FLEECE: Chalky white in color, uniform crimp with blunt ends; staple is definite. Covers the body completely from behind the poll and ears to slightly above the knees and hocks, including the belly.

Wool Grade:

3/8 to 1/4 blood combing
(58s to 48s or 27 to 33 microns)

Weight of fleece:

Rams: 8 to 14 pounds
Ewes: 6 to 10 pounds

Fleece Characteristics can be highly objectionable but not disqualifying:

- A. Black, brown or grey spots in the fleece
- B. Hairy britch
- C. Kemp throughout the fleece
- D. Shiny fleece

J. TESTICLES (RAMS): Uniform and adequate size for age, and well descended from body. Free from any abnormalities. Scrotum free from any split.

K. TEATS (EWES): Two well placed teats of moderate length, free from any abnormalities.

IV. HIGHLY OBJECTIONABLE CHARACTERISTICS

- 1. Poor breed type
- 2. Scurs
- 3. Bare belly
- 4. High shoulders
- 5. Pink or white hooves
- 6. Nose not totally black
- 7. Sandy or brown hair on any part of the body
- 8. Split Scrotum

9. Fleece characteristics per paragraph IV (I)

VI. DISQUALIFYING CHARACTERISTICS

- 1. Horns
- 2. Malformed mouth (overshot or undershot jaw)
- 3. Less than two testicles in rams
- 4. Less than two teats in ewes
- 5. Totally pink nose

IMPLEMENTING NEW BREED STANDARDS

The new Cheviot Standards of Excellence were adopted at the 2004 annual meeting of the American Cheviot Sheep Society. The new Breed Standards are the result of more than two years of work by a committee formed in 2002. Through the process of updating the Cheviot Breed Standards, members presented many thoughts and proposals. These thoughts were debated until the final draft was approved by a vote of the members in November 2004.

While probably not perfect, these Standards represent a significant step forward in the preservation of both the desirable carcass and the beautiful and distinctive Cheviot appearance. Now the important task of applying these Standards is up to all Cheviot breeders. Taking time to explain and demonstrate the preferred Cheviot characteristics to young 4-Hers and others who desire to be Cheviot breeders is critical.

Another important task in assuring that these Standards are followed is to choose judges for national Cheviot competitions who will apply them in the show ring. To help the Board of Directors evaluate how an individual judge applies the breed Standards of Excellence, we ask you to fill out the critique form found on the back page of the Cheviot Journal. If you need extra copies of the critique form, please contact the ACSS office. It is very important for each member to do this so we can establish a judge's review to assist in the selection of judges for national shows who follow the Breed Standards.

The American Cheviot Sheep Society has taken a large step forward in guarding and maintaining the quality of our Cheviot breed. It is now up to each one of us to complete this task. Please fill out a judge critique form for each show you attend and follow the instructions for submitting the form. If you would like extra copies of the Cheviot Breed Standards of Excellence to share with judges in your area, please contact the ACSS office.

2021 ALL-AMERICAN JUNIOR SHOW

The 2021 All-American Junior Sheep Show is going to be held at the Illinois State Fairgrounds, Springfield, IL from July 1-4, 2021. This will be the first time the All American has visited Illinois and we are looking forward to bringing the show to a state that is a hot bed for the purebred sheep industry! The Illinois committee is hard at work, planning the show and we all are very optimistic on the show going ahead this year in Illinois. Yes, there will be COVID-19 safety protocols in place to ensure this event's happening and hopefully as the spring progresses we won't have to implement all we are gearing up for, but we will do whatever is required of us to have a safe and healthy event for all of exhibitors and their families! Special for this 2021 show only, the upper age limit has been extended to include those who are 22 years of age as of January 1 st , we want to make sure that all of exhibitors have the experience of showing and knowing theyare in their last All American.

CHEVIOT EWE FUTURITY

Cheviot Ewe Futurity

The American Cheviot Sheep Society will again sponsor the Cheviot Futurity open to all Junior Exhibitors. A "Junior Exhibitor" is defined as an exhibitor who is not older than 21 on the date of the Junior Cheviot Show at NAILE. There is no lower age limit, but the Junior must be physically capable of showing their own sheep (exception made for physical or other handicap). Each Junior may purchase more than one animal, but only one animal placing in the top eight will be awarded to the top placings.

Consignors will nominate animals at specified sales and only these animals will be eligible for the Futurity. All animals must be purchased at a designated sale. Most consignment and private online sales offer Futurity nominated animals.

Consignor Rules:

1. Entries include Spring Ewe Lambs born Jan. 1, 2021 or later and Fall Ewe Lambs born Sept. 1, 2020. Yearling
Ewes that were previously nominated in 2020 as lambs can be re-nominated by the Juniors for $25.
2. Nominating fee of $25 is payable to the American Cheviot Sheep Society. Animals must be nominated and designated prior to entering the show ring of a designated sale. Futurity animals must be sold at the auction of a designated sale and not be pre-sold.
3. Animals must have Scrapie Identification in their ear prior to being sold.

Exhibitor Rules:

1. Age limitations for Junior Exhibitors: to be eligible to compete in the Futurity, an exhibitor must not be over 21 years of age on the date of the Junior Cheviot Show at NAILE.
2. Junior Members must be physically able to show their Futurity animal to qualify for points at each show (exception made for physical or other handicap). If an exhibitor has more than one Futurity animal in a class, the owning junior must show one and another exhibitor must show the second animal.

3. Futurity animals are to be registered in the individual Juniors name only. No partnerships, farm, family, 4-H Club or FFA Chapter names are acceptable.
4. Animals and points earned in the Futurity are not transferable to any other person; nor are the points transferable from one animal to another.
5. Any Futurity entrant may compete with as many animals as desired, but will receive a premium for the one animal with the highest point total, in each division.
6. Animals must be shown in proper age classes.
7. Premium: The American Cheviot Sheep Society has donated $800 to start the Futurity Premium. A percentage of this money will be awarded to each division based on the number of animals nominated. 11. Futurity animals may compete at any number of shows, but only the top five point-award shows will be included in determining awards.
12. Futurity Awards will be announced at NAILE.
13. The sliding scale shown in the chart indicates how points will be determined.

JERELL KETTERLING

How has the sheep industry, more specifically Cheviots, taught you responsibility in all aspects of your life?

As I am nearing my last year of high school, I am closing in to my seventh year of having Cheviots. My first set of Cheviots were a dispersal herd from Wyoming. From that point on, our herd has grown from five ewes and a ram, to forty ewes and three rams. If not for these sheep, I wouldn't be as hard of working individual as I am today. The responsibilities that sheep have taught me have helped me throughout my life and will help later on.

The first thing that I learned was patience. Cheviot's have a will of their own, which is very well known. Since having to deal with them for a long time, I learned a thing or two from them, especially during lambing. Cheviot's are quite helpful when it comes to lambing, because they are great mothers. They seem to just need a little time to let their instincts kick in.

Another responsibility that I gained from Cheviots is literally being responsible for the sheep. I never had sheep before the Cheviots, so I never knew how to take care of them. Ever so slowly, I started to learn how feed, water, and build shelter for the sheep. Now that I have had the sheep for quite some time, I can safely say that I can feed sheep accurately, and according to their size.

Finally, these sheep have humbled me. A mother Cheviot can raise its lambs in the coldest of weather, without any help from humans. They are a hardy breed, and always spry. I am glad that I took a chance when choosing the Cheviots, and I hope that my herd will grow in the years to come.

ASHLEY MOORE

How has the sheep industry, more specifically Cheviots, taught you responsibility in all aspects of your life?

Cheviot sheep has taught me many things about being responsible. When I was younger my dad would always say, “you cannot eat or drink until you feed and make sure the sheep have water.” Today I live by that, that the animals always come first. With raising cheviots and many other kinds of sheep, you notice the difference in how the lambs act when they are born. The cheviot lambs are always the ones who get up right away, want to live, nurse, and make lots of noise. That is one thing I admire about the Cheviot sheep. At our farm, I am always the one to take care of the bottle lambs because I have the most patience. It is usually my responsibility to make sure they get their colostrum right away and that they stay warm. I will stay at my grandpa’s house to care for the sheep overnight. I would go out at midnight, at three o’clock, and my dad would go out at six o’clock. Then I will usually do the morning chores and make sure everyone is happy for the day.

Being around sheep my whole life, you learn that they are part of your family and even your best friend, so you are going to do everything for them. Another big responsibility I had was to make sure that every animal was healthy. I am the one who will tell my dad that a sheep would be limping. We would need to give the sheep a shot of some medication. Most of the time my dad would tell me to go and do it. It was my responsibility to make sure I give it to the right sheep, and I had to make sure that the sheep would not need another shot.

I have been raising cheviot sheep for about 15 years. I will say they keep me on my feet. They have taught me many things about life. The biggest thing is responsibility. I know sheep are the main reason why all my homework gets done and on time, why I am never late to anything, and why so many people trust me when I tell them I will do something for them or even help them out. Cheviot sheep have helped me become the person I am today.

BREEDER SOUND OFF

DAN STRAHL

Introduce yourself and your family.

Dan Strahl, BlackAcre Farm, Greenfield Indiana. I have been involved in the sheep business since I was 10 years old. In 4-H, our family raised Hampshires (mine) and Columbias (my brother, Jerry). After college, I bought a farm increased my Hampshire flock and added significant flock of Suffolks and raised many winners at national shows and sales with both Hampshires and Suffolks. I graduated from Purdue University in Animal Science; an M.S degree from the University of Missouri and my J.D from the Indiana University School of Law (but I am not a Hoosier fan!).

My wife, Vicky Keramida and I reside in Greenfield, Indiana on a 200-acre farm, BlackAcre. I'm a practicing attorney and my wife is a PhD environmental engineer from Purdue University who founded and owns KERAMIDA, Inc., a nationally and globally known environmental engineering company headquartered in Indianapolis.

Throughout the years, I have enjoyed combining my legal career with my love for raising purebred sheep. My involvement with livestock also includes supporting Purdue University and its livestock judging program along with judging many national and state sheep shows and sales.

We have two daughters and one granddaughter. Our oldest, Chloe, resides in Manhattan, New York with her 10-year-old daughter, Arabella. Chloe graduated from Parsons University and is a web designer and advertising executive for Vicky's company.

Our youngest daughter, Adriana, has a B.S. degree for the University of California, Berkeley, and an M.S. from the University College of London, in architecture. She lives in Indianapolis and teaches architecture at Ball State University. She was recently engaged and we are planning a wedding at our farm in the summer of 2022.

Give us a brief description of your Cheviot Flock.

Our Cheviot flock numbers approximately 30 brood ewes with 9 coming yearlings, 12 fall lambs and the upcoming spring lamb crop. Most of our ewes are from Dusty Rincker and Spilde flocks, along with a few Misty Acre and Judy Moore ewes. Patmos, the 2019 National Sale Champion ram sired our yearling crop and we are looking forward to see how those daughters produce in upcoming years.

Why did you choose to raise Cheviots?

After graduating from law school, I dispersed my Hamps and Suffolks in order to devote more time to my family and law practice. Having been involved in the purebred sheep business since 1960, I missed having newborn lambs to watch play in the fields during the spring. Cheviots are beautiful animals to observe in the field and hardy enough to allow me the time to continue my law practice. They also stay out of my way when I go into the barn to feed.

What advice do you have for people starting out with Cheviots?

Find good breeders and mentors to provide advice as to the selection of your seedstock and management of the flock.

What are one or two things that you have found to be critical needs for the success of your Cheviot Flock?

Patience and hard work also the ability to get out of the way quickly when necessary!

Who are some people that you credit for your success with Cheviots?

There are many but probably the most significant person and the one I miss the most was Rod Crome, a life-long friend. When I told him how I missed the joy of watching young lambs bounce and play in the field, he suggested that I get three Cheviot ewes. Along with many other stories, jokes and sage insights, he also provided the advice that "it doesn't cost any more to feed a good one than a bad one".

Final four quick questions, just for fun

What is your favorite sports team?

Purdue Boilermakers

What is your favorite food?

About anything that is put on the table.

What is the top item on your bucket list?

I would love to travel to Australia and New Zealand.

What is your favorite place you have visited?

My wife is from Athens, Greece so we travel there twice each year to enjoy the scenery, history, food and people.
